

Integrated PBPK modelling for PFOA exposure and risk assessment

CITATION & PUBLICATION METADATA

Primary Authors: Achilleas Karakoltzidis et al.

Journal & Citation: Environmental Research (2025), Vol. 282: 121947

DOI Link: <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.envres.2025.121947>

PubMed Identifier: <https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/40436402/>

SUMMARY & ABSTRACT:

Perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) poses persistent health risks due to its long elimination half-life and tissue accumulation. This study presents an integrated human PBPK model incorporating GI tract, blood, hepatic processing, renal filtration, and tissue sub-compartments to evaluate human exposure biomonitoring data.

ASSOCIATED MODEL & PARAMETER FILES (EXACT MATCHING NAME):

- PDF Document: PFAS_Karakoltzidis_2025.pdf
- Parameters CSV: PFAS_Karakoltzidis_2025_parameters.csv
- Antimony Model: PFAS_Karakoltzidis_2025_antimony.ant